Prosecution completes testimony

Spiliotopoulos defense denies hot rod charges

SAN LEANDRO — That bright yellow, "souped-up, hot rod Model T pick-up truck" actually is a promotion vehicle for George Spiliotopoulos' Cheese Factory and is equipped with an unmodified 1964 Chevrolet engine.

So charged the former Pleasanton City Councilman's attorney, Charles McCrory, in his opening remarks to the jury during yesterday's second day of proceedings alleging Spiliotopoulos' drove recklessly through the scene of an injury accident last July 28.

Deputy district attorney Clifford Campbell, 10 months a practicing attorney with as many months as a prosecutor, rested his case after producing two more California Highway Patrolmen and a civilian as witnesses.

Another patrolman and civilian testified Wednesday.

The defense presented six witnesses yesterday, including four members of one family, and will call Spiliotopoulos and an as yet unnamed witness to the stand today.

McCrory, omitting any reference to Spiliotopoulos' position as Alameda County Planning Commissioner and former councilman, told the jury he would show "there's nothing souped-up about (the pick-up truck)," contrary to testimony by the CHP, and that patrolmen were not waving lights at his client's car and "yelling at him to slow down."

His six witnesses, he said, would show that there were no flares in Spiliotopoulos' path and no loud engine noise or smoke from his exhaust.

Priscilla Hernandez, Campbell's first witness before Municipal Court Judge Robert Fairwell, said Spiliotopoulos did not slow down and did not hit his brakes as he went through the accident scene.

He sped up, she continued, beyond the accident at the crest of the hill on Castro Valley's Center Street.

Under cross examination by McCrory she said she was "definitely upset about the speed of cars" in front of her Center Street apartment, and that seeing the planning commissioner speed "bothered her."

She insisted that Spiliotopoulos "fishtailed" (the car's rear end breaking loose) when he reached the crest of the hill.

She said she told "a very tall officer," later identified as CHP patrolman Pat Bjorklund, that traffic is bad on the street and that they should do something.

Bjorklund said he first was attracted to the car by the "loud noise of a racing engine" coming up Center Street "at an unreasonable speed." He said later, "About 50 mph."

He claimed to have flashed a light into the truck, but that it "just kept going."

"Here come another speeder and he's really going," he reported an onlooker as saying.

He told McCrory that he put out the first CHP 30 minute flares, but that he could "not recall" anyone putting out subsequent flares.

Campbell's last witness, Elry Gowan, a 20-year veteran of the CHP, said he first heard "the souped-up thing" when it was revving up."

He claimed flares were still in the street and that he called to onlookers to look out and they "scrambled out of the way."

McCrory was to make good use of Gowan's description of the people as "scrambling."

"Everybody was yelling at (Spiliotopoulos) to slow down," he said, both civilians and patrolman.

"The driver looked toward me and tramped on the gas," he continued, leaving "a puff of smoke out of the back as he increased speed" and slid around the corner.

"If Swartz hadn't arrested him, I would have," he added.

McCrory's six witnesses generally concurred in their testimony, five saying they were attracted to the truck because of its looks and not because it made loud engine noises.

The sixth, Mrs. Patricia Alberti, did not recognize a photo of the truck.

"No," she said in response to McCrory's questions, she was not conscious of any car or truck speeding through. Nor was there unusual noise, smoke or yelling.

Flares, she and the others testified, still were burning to the north of the accident scene, but none could remember them along Spiliotopoulos' approach path.

Her husband and two sons also testified.

"Most cars slowed down," 15-year-old Michael Alberti said. "He went through just like the others." although he did not slow down on the approach.

"Yes," he answered, it "sounded like a car shifting down. I know what a downshift is."

Did Spiliotopoulos "fishtail" at the top of the hill? "No," he answered, "it was perfect."

His brother, 13-year-old Gerald Alberti, told the jury he and a friend were the first at the accident scene.

He spotted the yellow Model T, he said, because "I like old cars."

He saw nó police waving and no smoke. The Pleasanton civic leader was going "about the same speed as everybody else goes," about 30 or 40 mph.

Did anyone have to "scramble" out of the way, McCrory repeated to each witness, and each in turn said no.

Colleen Ross, 24, another apartment resident and witness, concurred in her testimony but said "he was going faster than the other cars," but that he had slowed down. No flares, no smoke or noise and no yelling or "scrambling."

"When the truck went by," she continued, "I said to myself, 'Well, he's going to get it next.' "

She knew, she said, by the expression on the patrolman's face.

Two other witnesses, Mr. Raymond Alberti, the father, and Karen Phelps, another 24-year-old apartment resident, testified.

Mr. Alberti said he knew there were flares to the north, but would be "guessing there were flares" on the south end of Center St.

Both concurred: no smoke, no excessive noise, no yelling and no "scrambling."

A 48,000 limit?

Council to view ceiling

PLEASANTON — The city council Monday night will consider a planning commission recommendation that a 48,700 population ceiling be established for the 20-year period ending 1996.

The resolution, unanimously passed by the four - man commission Wednesday night, greatly reduces anticipated population estimates from the city's general plan, set at 76,000 by 1996.

Planners pointed to growth management programs such as Petaluma's as a method of curbing the local population.

"The imposition of valley - wide growth controls by federal and state authorities will make it necessary for Pleasanton to establish a program to allocate the limited amount of sewage capacity available for local development over the twenty year period 1976-1996," the resolution said in part.

A growth rate of two per cent per year for the next 20 years was suggested, representating a projected allowable growth rate of 211 dwelling units per year.

Planners estimate the ultimate population ceiling at 76,000. They say this "ultimate holding capacity" would not be reached until "sometime after" 1996.

A controlled method of restricting expansion is a growth management program, such as those already functioning in Petaluma and Davis. The legality of such programs was recently upheld in a Federal Circuit Court.

These plans are not based on arbitrary limits on growth, the planners point out, but on predetermined limits set forth in the cities' general plans.

"Clearly, if any two communities in California can justify growth management programs, they would be Pleasanton and Livermore. The establishment of an effective program for the city should be accomplished within the next few months as an explicit ingredient of the city's general plan," the resolution states in part.

Planners heard local developers oppose the resolution and urge them to continue to "coast along as we have." The investors cited the future of the proposed Stoneridge Shopping Center as a major factor in deciding if growth limits would hurt Pleasanton economically.

The city has waged a long battle to convince the Environmental Protection Agency that such growth restrictions would be harmful and that they should instead help fund local sewage plant expansion.

Such sewage capacity increase is needed, city officials argued, to fulfill committments already made to developers and other phases of the development cycle in which Pleasanton is currently engaged.

The EPA attempts to discourage growth in areas where the level of smog is high. City officials have argued that a growth in population doesn't necessary mean a corresponding increase in pollution.

The three major areas where high density residential uses have been planned and zoned include the central business district, Vineyard Ave. and the 98 acres adjacent to the proposed shopping center. Other areas zoned for multiples dwelling units include Mission Park, Del Prado and Vintage Hills.

"Whether rezonings in any or all of these areas would be required would depend upon the adequacy of the growth management program, however," the resolution says.

The city council will consider planners' recommendations that a growth management plan be prepared, using some of the elements of the Petaluma and Davis plans, but considering that "unique conditions exist here which will require considerable modifications to those documents."

The planners further recommended that a general plan map be prepared, sohowing what form ultimate development should take. An accompanying growth management plan would determine how phasing of the development would best be accomplished.

Fallon hope at low ebb

DUBLIN — While plans are firm for moving of Old Murray School from its precipitous location in the shadow of Highway 580 expansion, the outlook for restoration and moving of the old Fallon Home has reached its lowest ebb.

Caltrans, the State Department of Transportation, will move — in two sections — Old Murray School onto a parcel adjacent to St.Raymond's Church on Donlon Way.

Dublin Historical Preservation Society members have come to a tentative agreement with the Dublin Cemetery Association in which they (DHPS) will provide water to the cemetery in exchange for approximately an acre of ground — or the equivalent of some 40 cemetery plots.

While the cost to the historical group is not definite, Virginia Bennett told The Times Thursday it would not be more than $5,000.

The financial situation is clouded somewhat by the fact the Dublin group was formed just a couple of months ago and has a treasury of about $200.

Caltrans had told the valley historical group a decision, as to where Old Murray School would be moved, would have to be forwarded to them by Saturday, Nov. 1.

With notification of the Donlon Way site, stakes have been set in place. Caltrans will bear the entire cost of moving the structure, now used by the Primitive Baptist Church, from its location next to Highway 580 (near its intersection with Foothill Road) to Donlon Way.

The Dublin group will take it from there.

Restoration and moving of the Fallon Home is something else again.

California Hi teacher puts expertise to work

(This is the seventh in a continuing series on The Classroom Teacher, featuring elementary and high school teachers in the Pleasanton, Amador, San Ramon and Murray school districts)

SAN RAMON — Ever - mindful of the creativity engendered from new surroundings or a new challenge, Geraldine Shipley brought her 23 years of teaching expertise to California High School in the fall of 1974.

It has proven an incomparable experience to this very precise and discerning instructor.

But, in actuality, experiencing the configurations and curriculum of California High School is like watching the growth of a new born babe from childhood, through adolescence to adulthood.

Mrs. Shipley is the epitome of the professional educator who sees where she is at in her career and can draw upon all applicable previous experience to the best advantage of students in her classes.

The very surroundings at the school demand flexibility from both staff and student.

Cal High, in this writer's viewpoint, would be a logical progression for students coming out of programs at Walnut Grove and Harvest Park in Pleasanton.

All accentuate the pod configuration for teaching areas.

Before her arrival at California High, a move she sought as a means to providing the challenge, Mrs. Shipley had taught for 10 years in San Ramon Valley Unified School District schools.

In fact, she will be completing a quarter-century of teaching come this June.

Mrs. Shipley began her career in Oregon as a teacher-counselor at the junior high level in McMinnville. She also taught physical education and even did some coaching during her 10 years in Oregon.

Moving to this state, she began her association with the San Ramon district 12 years ago, teaching eighth grade at Charlotte Wood in Danville for several years.

Her present position is that of teaching in the humanities pod. It is part of an inter-disciplinary teaching concept that has taken shape at the futuristically-conceived plant.

In the electives program at the school, music, art and science are offered in such a manner as to keep the student in a progressive time-frame — moving from a colonial period of American history, for example, through the revolutionary period and on forward into the 20th century to present day.

Ten teachers are assigned to the humanities division, covering students in grades 7 through 12.

Mrs. Shipley and fellow staff members in the pod instruct junior high classes during the first three periods of the day and then senior high (10-12) for the remaining periods.

"Humanities makes up one - fourth of the total school," she notes, "and our section is the 'Desert' area." Each of the four areas at the school are given a designation, such as "desert", mountains" or "coast."

She sees about 150 students a day, divided into five periods, and has one assigned duty besides....that being study hall supervision.

At present, the senior high classes are studying the Constitution — probing in depth the reasons why colonists left the Old World. During the next semester they will come forward from the colonial times to study (through social studies, science and art) the social changes of the 19th century, slavery, the flourishing of capitalism and the western movement.

But perhaps the big problem, associated with any new school, is the physical layout and the lack of traditions.

Mrs. Shipley credits Bev Carter, a parent, as one of the many persons in the community who is helping the school develop.

But all contribute, each in their own way. Mrs. Shipley supervised planting of 1,000 daffodil bulbs Wednesday as part of ongoing landscape activities.

The layout of the school can be confusing, too.

As witness a recent Back - to - School Night where student guides were necessary to get parents to and from classroom areas.

The present senior class had the option three years ago of staying at an established school in the district or transferring to California. Fifty-six elected to become pioneers and help establish traditions.

Traditions can be an elusive thing, though.

But the school, under the direction of Ernie Berger, finds no such elusive quality in a goal they've set for the curriculum ....the presenting of distinctive choices for each and every student.

It is a goal that Geraldine Shipley, with her considerable experience, and fellow staff members are moving toward each and every day.

Warhead injures 11 in Nevada

A test cannister containing a small nuclear warhead accidentally fell 40 feet to the bottom of a 650-foot drilled shaft it was being lowered into, injuring 11 Nevada Test Site workers, including a Lawrence Livermore Laboratory (LLL) employe, Sydney B. Hamilton.

The accident occurred Oct. 23 at Yucca Flat, Nevada.

An Energy Research and Development Administration official said that at no time has there been a danger of the device being inadvertently detonated. No radiation leaks have been detected at the surface or at depth in the hole.

Hamilton, 49, suffered a broken leg in the accident. He has been employed at the lab since 1959 and is an engineering coordinator. Hamilton, a Las Vegas resident, is one of about 100 LLL staff members permanently located in Nevada to help with nuclear testing activities.

An investigation is underway to determine the cause of the accident which occurred during preparation for a test code-named "Peninsula."

The warhead remains at the bottom of the shaft, and officials are considering three possible recovery plans: pulling the warhead out of the shaft, drilling another shaft alongside to retrieve it, or detonating another nuclear warhead near the cannister to destroy it.

Scholarship competition stiffens as awards cut

The California State Scholarship and Loan Commission has announced the opening of the competition for the 1976-77 State Graduate Fellowship Program which provides for up to full tuition and/or fees at any graduate or professional school located in California.

The school must be accredited by or in candidate status for accreditation by the Western Association of Schools and Colleges or any law school which is accredited by the California State Bar Association.

State Graduate Fellowships are available to students who enter their first or second year of graduate or professional school beginning Sept. 1, 1976.

There will be about 200 new fellowships available in contrast to 800 available last year due to limited funding. This means that competition will be much higher for the awards. The Commission will continue to select students of unusual ability and achievement, and give consideration to students with substantial potential for success in graduate school who may come from a disadvantaged background.

Fellowships will be allocated among the nine categories listed on the application which are allied health, arts and humanities, education, science and science professions, social sciences, law, business, dental and medical professions. The allocations will be based on consideration of estimates of the manpower needs of the state.

All fellowship applicants will be required to submit test scores from either the Graduate Record Examination, the Law School Admission Test, the Dental Admissions Test, the Medical College Admissions Test, or the Graduate Management Admission Test depending on the specific academic competition entered. No test scores will be accepted from tests taken after Jan. 31, 1976, and students must request that scores from previous test administrations be sent to the Commission by that date. Announcment of winners will be about May 14, 1976.

Applications may be secured from California colleges and universities or directly from the Commission, 1410 Fifth St., Sacramento, Calif. 95814 and must be filed with the Commission by Dec. 15, 1975.

Privateer gets the point

As he bites the buccaneer

Fatrat faces the Halloween pirates

Editor's note: FatRat is a white and tan rat who lives on North P Street in Livermore. Further adventures will be written as they occur.

The weather started to change during the night.

Instead of sighing softly, the October wind began to moan past the corners of the house. It lifted the torn screens, and slapped them down again. It worried the leaves in the gutters until they rattled like a million dry bones.

FatRat squeaked in his sleep and snuggled deeper into the soft blue flannel decorated with basketball players that was once Kevin's and Rachel's pajama-top sleeve that FatRat had inherited for his bed.

It sounded like a cat was on the roof, mewing. FatRat opened one eye

He looked at that scary orange thing in the window. His friend Rachel called it a jack'o'lantern but as far as FatRat was concerned, it was good food gone to waste. Rachel had dug out all the juicy seeds and filling and thrown it away.

Then, she had cut holes in it to make a hideous face.

Luckily, FatRat had a chance to take a few bites out of the lid before they stuck a candle in it and spoiled the whole thing with rotten-tasting black smoke.

Now, the candle in the jack'o'lantern was burning low. It was throwing shadows on the wall that seemed to get bigger and grab at him , and then wobbled back into nothingness .

A chill wind was breathing at him around the edges of the window. Finally, FatRat pulled the Kleenex box over him and stuck his head into the farthest corner so he wouldn't have to see the sights and feel the cold.

The next thing FatRat knew, a gray light was seeping into the bedroom . It was morning, but it was raining and the sun hadn't bothered to show up.

Time for a few hops across Kevin's bed before breakfast, FatRat thought wiggling his fine white whiskers . He backed out of his Kleenex box...right onto a glove.

Another glove closed over him. "What's this!" he squeaked in a panic.

The glove was at the end of a long ruffled white sleeve. The sleeve was attached to a frilly white shirt, which was under a red velvet vest.

FatRat was afraid to look at the face of this monster. But he did, and was sorry.

A fierce black, hairy mustache that turned down at the corners.

And a tiny black goatee to match
A black patch over one eye. A big black hat with purple plume.

"The children!" FatRat said heroically to himself. "I must save Kevin and Rachel from this monster!"

So he sank his long, pointed teeth into the hand that was imprisoning him — and got nothing but a thick glove in his mouth.

The small white hero looked around the bedroom in a panic. The children were gone. Instead, yet another mean creature was standing by the door wearing a black cape with red lining.

"Hey," said Rachel's voice. "Happy Halloween, FatRat!"

It was Kevin's familiar smell under the gloves. "Poor old FatRat," he giggled. "I guess he didn't recognize us with our costumes. We really scared him!"

FatRat's small heart was still thumping under his raised fur.

Then a third monster came into the room. This was a short but very lumpy old man, in a green suit with warts on his face.

"Come on, we'll be late for school!" said the old man, and FatRat knew it was Kevin's friend, Kent, from the next block.

"Why don't you take FatRat along?" the old man suggested. "Pirates sail ships, right? And ships have rats, right?"

"Well," said Kevin. "Maybe in my trick-or-treat bag."

" So FatRat is riding around in the bottom of a trick-or-treat bag today, disguised as a fierce harbor rat. If two pirates and a lumpy old man come to your door for trick-or-treat, drop an apple or some popcorn or an oatmeal cookie into the bag of the biggest pirate.

Tell him it's for the big,,bad harbor rat and FatRat will think he fooled you.

New car licensing procedures staggered

Although car registeration lines at Dept. of Motor Vehicle offices will be longer this year, the DMV says most motorists can avoid the hassle by simply dropping their forms and payment check in the mail.

DMV Acting Director Doris Alexis, replacing Director Herman Sillas in observation of DMV's Women Week, said registration lines will be longer this year due to a new form of staggered registration procedure being implemented this year.

The computer card renewal notice was redesigned this year because of the changeover, and will be further simplified when the new system is fully underway. California becomes the 18th state to change to some form of staggered registration, Alexis says.

Under the new system, the calendar year has been divided into 120 expiration dates for autos and motorcycles, with an equal number of the 11 million total falling due on each of the expiration dates each month.

An equal number of registrations of the state's four million trucks and trailers will expire on the last day of each month, she added.

Alexis advises motorists to avoid the lines, save gasoline and wear and tear on their nerves by simply dropping a stamped envelope containing the renewal form and payment check in the nearest mailbox. Those motorists who must visit a DMV office should come early, she said.

Ambassador Diane wins some friends

The image of the "Ugly American" that many would conjure up in viewing this nation's role on all foreign soil was brushed aside the other day in the most unlikely of places, by a most improbable person.

Diane Dunbar did not go to Mexico City to express our country's policies. She went simply as "one of perhaps 2000" members of the United States entry in the Pan American Games. But we have a hunch that this diminutive gal did something much more for her country than just perform in medal-winning style in gymnastic competition.

"I want you to know that the reports you have read about American athletes being booed and mistreated in those games was not typical of our reception by the Mexican people," Diane told a business gathering at the Pleasanton Hotel. "I found the people down there warm and friendly," said the teenager from Foothill High School.

And this was the same girl who had to "wait ten minutes for the booing to die down before I could start my performance ... while the person in charge was pushing me to go on, and my coach was insisting that I just stand there." Somehow, Diane retained her composure, and still managed a medal-winning entry on the bars.

Her performance before that hometown audience of business leaders was a gold medal winner on anyone's scale. Somehow, despite the anti-American jeers and the stomach cramps and an ordeal that is often beyond even our seasoned foreign officers, Diane Dunbar managed to return home with a positive image of the people she encountered, south of the border.

It brings to mind the flag-waiving, heavyweight title triumph staged by another valley representative to Mexico City, a few years back. George Foreman is still remembered for his Olympic performance in those 1968 games.

Diane Dunbar has earned her own place in our hearts, for the courage and the poise she displays here at home.

Be on the alert tonight!

Letters to the Times

No redevelopment

Copy of a letter to
Mr. Edgar and City Council Members:
The CARD Committee has put in many long hours and made an extensive study of redevelopment plans in other cities. We have found both good and bad points of a redevelopment plan in all the areas visited.

We brought this information back and presented it to the people we represent. We, the committee, feel we reported this information in an unbiased way, stating facts as we found them.

The people we represent then directed us to stop any further investigation. The motion was made and carried for us to work for the dissolution of the Pleasanton Redevelopment Agency.

The CARD Committee was formed out of a group of Concerned Citizens and it is our duty to abide by the decisions of the majority of these people. That is the democratic way of doing things.

We, therefore, cannot recommend a revised plan, we must ask for the immediate dissolution of the Pleasanton Redevelopment Agency.

Bob Wright

Editor, The Times:
Bob Wright left this world — without even saying goodbye to anyone — that was one of his ways. It was inevitable — with Bob's heart — but that didn't slow his many activities — each designed to defend our freedoms — and to make public bodies responsive to the electorate.

Bob was the conscience of Livermore — and like all good consciences he bothered people. The Rec Board developed that deadly foot-in-mouth disease attempting to alter rules to exclude Reverand Wright's church — it was different — and one couldn't tolerate that, you know. A former mayor was halted by the barb of Bob's satire when his honor attempted to bring party politics into a city council meeting. Two blows to help guarantee our freedoms — won for Livermore but unnoticed by most — and then on to new quests — that was Bob's way — quietly and with deliberate satire exposing an incompetent school board — the folly of organized religion — oppressive laws — inadequacies at thp Lab.

Amazing foresight — his "way out" ideas — now commonplace — accepted.

Livermore's loss — its farsighted gadfly — left a legacy some of us won't forget — I will always see his slow, deliberate walk into my garage with yet another cause — working on it — always fighting to benefit his fellow man — accepting of everyone — their differences — whether political, color, social, religious — that was Bob's way.

Bob Wright enriched my life considerably — his impact on Livermore was exceptional — that's why he seemed to be here.

College planning

Editor, The Times:
"The College Planning Guide" has been given free of charge to seniors and all of the college-bound juniors of the Livermore Schools and many students and counselors in the Livermore, Pleasanton, Dublin, and San Ramon areas. In addition complementary copies were given to branch presidents of the American Association of University Women in an effort to provide an impetus of providing more complete counseling service to students around the state of California. The book is meant as a public service project.

I wish to publicly thank Virginia McFann, Peggy Burdick, Fran Blomgren, Louise Gray, Marie Ruzicka, Mary Helen Clements, Marty Barrett, the Del Valle High School students, Jackie Howard, Madge Takemora, Jan Blaedel and her California High School students, Pat Wilson, Kathy Berg (freshman at Livermore High School), Jerry Motta and many others for helping collate, type and staple 2000 copies of the book. Also for the excellent typist Barbara Frisch Knecht.

The book, compiled and written by Granada counselor Keith Cariveau and myself, could never have been published without grants from the Eldred Chance Memorial Fund, LEA Alan Schell president and Renee Bullard, past president, AAUW, Livermore School Board members individually, the Livermore Unified School District, Leo Croce, superintendent, Richard Jenkins, Director of Pupil Services, Trude Engelund, the Del Valle High School.

Counselors from the Livermore, Granada, and Amador High Schools were most cooperative with help and support. Counselors from other school districts have been excited about the book and so far about five school districts are planning to copy it.

Our AAUW committee wil have a booth at the College Faire to be held at the Livermore High School Student Union on Thursday, Oct. 30 from 6 to 10 p.m. Questions about the college advisory service will be answered and more copies of the book will be available.

Many thanks also to the women in AAUW who have donated their time to the cause: Gail Garrison, Dawn Gordner, Kaye Waugh, Becky Stinard, Jackie Loyd, Pat Mann, Emily Stahl, Nancy Hawtrey and Helen Tirsell. Thanks to the counseling staffs at Granada High School, Livermore High Schools especially Art Ackerman, and David Yandell and Cyro Boanano. And a most special thank you to Jack Lee, principal of Granada High School who gave me the support and encouragement all the way through at a time when no one else did.

Defending Alice

Editor, The Times:
I am writing this in response to the article in your Oct. 26 issue concerning opposition to NOW and the Alice Doesn't Day. The group criticizing NOW made the accusation that NOW is a threat to the family institution, the church, and the government. They also imply that feminists do not love their families or support their country.

I think those opposing the women's movement are quick to slap fear - provoking and inaccurate labels to feminists. Each feminist is an individual. I can share my interpretation of the women's movement and what it means to me. I want the economic and political power to be able to choose the direction of my life. Historically the institutions of the family, church, and government have used their power to exploit women and keep them in a powerless position. These institutions have had a low tolerance to differences in people.

There are many people today who fall into the "different" category. They are no longer intimidated into feeling inferior because they don't conform to those institutions' idea of the perfect person.

FOCUS/The job market

Diploma losing value

The high school diploma has long since expired as an automatic passport into the working world.

In its place has come specialized vocational education.

In fact, some experts in the education field — albeit somewhat slanted by past or present ties to trade and technical schools— believe 80 per cent of all jobs now require a specialized vocational training.

The unskilled will have the worst time job hunting since many occupations are becoming increasingly complicated and technical.

As an off-the-top-of-our-head example we can think of a visit we made recently to McDonald's in Dublin.

Now the fast food or waitress job has always been a major area for employment of teenagers.

But even the youngsters who fill these jobs have to know something beyond the basics of writing down an order or adding up a simple column of figures.

At many of the fast food outlets, such as McDonalds in Dublin, and in many grocery stores nowadays, figuring up the bill means knowing how to run computerized equipment.

Can more sophisticated computer hardware be much farther down the road?

While a lack of training is a major stumbling block, there certainly isn't a lack of information. The Department of Labor recently published a thick "Occupational Outlook Handbook", an economic crystal ball of sorts since it predicts future opportunities in over 800 occupations.

The picture for teachers and boatswains, for example, is cloudy, while rapid growth is forecast for white collar positions and in the service-producing industries such as computers, health care, the trades, repair and maintenance, banking and others.

We could not help but wonder, after walking past a score of students languidly waiting for a bus in front of fortress-like California High the other day, whether they are prepared to make the career decisions they SHOULD make in the next year or two.

Looking at them from my point in life, I could not help but feel a little panicky for their future prospects.

The handbook we mentioned predicts that repairmen of just about anything from toasters to airplanes is one of the fastest growing occupations there is. Obviously, a young man or woman who is mechanically inclined and can fathom detailed technical instructions will always be in demand.

Repairmen are part of a pretty well paid field, earnings averaging between $4 and $7 per hour. While the trade may be learned on the job in about three years, vocational school courses will teach a trainee more quickly, usually in 4 to 9 months.

The other day we had an occasion to call a plumber. The low bid we got on a very routine job was $32.50 an hour.

That was just for labor of course. Any parts would be extra.

High schoolers and others about to plan careers would do well to consider the rapidly growing medical field. Employing over 3.5 million people, the outlook is excellent for qualified job seekers due to an increasing health consciousness among Americans made possible by more widespread insurance coverage, either private or through federal programs of health care.

Besides physicians and nurses, millions of paramedics— medical assistants, operating room technicians, medical secretaries, nurses aides, dieticians, dental assistants, and many others— carry out the work of administering health care; and all are expected to be in very great demand over the next decade!

A little-known field— respiratory therapy — is in much demand, with good chances of advancement. Yet, only 1,800 respiratory therapists are available for the many thousands of hospitals and clinics.

While a B.A. may be obtained in respiratory therapy, shorter concentrated courses are given at vocational schools, reducing the time for training from four years to 18 months.

And we would be remiss if we completed this piece without mentioning the news media.

The field is unlimited, whether one wants to write for a newspaper, magazine or for television. The opportunities are equally as great "behind the camera", in the newspaper composing room or in advertising sales.

For more pertinent information on vocational preparation, one might call Sandy Sandoval or Roy Isler at the Amador Valley High School District offices or Mike Connolly, adult education director.

round the town

The word is filtering down through the coffee shop crowd. It is whispered in the back row of the chamber lunch. Boomed out across the five o'clock bar. Everywhere, the message is the same.

"Nobody wants to run for office this year."

The VCSD November ballot should have been warning enough. Five candidates, more or less. Three vacancies. "We'll get more choice at the Lucky produce department," one citizen complained. It's that way with all the upcoming election races.

"Undecided," says Mayor Archer Futch of his plans for a second term. "No comment," adds Don Miller, and no one can recall when Councilman Don Miller last said "No comment." It's that kind of year.

"Too busy with the job," answers Mayor Ed Kinney at the Pleasanton end of the valley. And he wasn't smiling. HE WASN'T SMILING! I don't think you understand the full significance of all this. It portends a lot of sad faces, in the election year of 1976. I resolved to find out why.

"It's this women's lib thing," said the rotund man hunched over the you-know-where bar. "The women are ruining politics, and you can quote me," he asserted, but then adding, "but please don't use my name. I'd never hear the last of it at home."

Why did this dedicated community servant and part-time realtor conclude that women were the ruination of our political system?

"They don't understand the rules of the game," he explained, slurping his double martini, over. "They arrive at the meetings with absolutely no prepararion, no idea of how to vote."

Do you mean they don't understand the agenda items?

"Oh they understand that kind of stuff, I suppose. But they don't understand the politics, know what I mean? They haven't learned about how to line up the votes ahead of time. In the old days we'd meet in Manuel's barber shop, have everything worked out nice and smooth well before the meeting. But who ever sees a female politician in the barber shop? And I sure as blazes ain't going to any beauty shop," he concluded.

My next stop was at the office of Peter Perennial, the town's most persistent candidate. Peter was engrossed in travel folders. "Fly with Sara on the sands of Suva," the colorful pamphlet advised. Was Peter planning a trip?

"You bet your mimeograph I am. None of this election stuff for old PP," he announced.

But how come? Peter Perennial has been a candidate hereabouts since way back when folks actually favored growth. What happened to change PP's mind?

"Rules!" he said, disgustedly. "Too damned many rules. Used to be that running for elected office was fun. I never really expected to win. Never really wanted to, when it gets right down to it. But I sure enjoyed running. Convincing folks I had all the answers. Attacking the incumbents. Those were the good old days." And then what happened?

"Proposition 9, that's what. They've made it so complicated to run a campaign that nobody but a fool, or a bona fide candidate, is going to get involved anymore. Blazes, I could buy a small ad in your newspaper and advertise my name for less than it now costs just to file my nomination papers. Elections are no longer a free promotion trip, my boy, and you can quote me."

I left Peter Perennial my advertising rate card, and hurried on to the third-story offices of I.B. Emm, the noted accountant. He looked terribly busy.

"Come in, come in," I.B. said excitedly. "What are you running for? Just fill out this blue form . . I designed it myself for candidates who can't read."

No, no, I explained, I am not a candidate. Just a reporter trying to get the facts ...

"Then you'll want this pink form," I.B. interrupted. "Designed it myself to help reporters who can't write."

You seem to have this whole election process worked out to assembly-line precision, I observed.

"You bet I have, you bet I have," I.B. said. "Proposition 9 did it. Makes elections so complicated than only candidates with an accountant on the payroll can wade through all the forms."

So you're pleased with our new election process, I said. You don't feel Proposition 9 is any hindrance?

"Hindrance!" I.B. Emm roared. "My God, it's the greatest boon to bookkeepers and attorneys since the Standard IRS form."

Sound and Fury

Walt Hecox

There appear to be a few people here and there who need my help, a commodity with which I am well endowed and liberal in dispensing whether it is desired or not.

This morning I am Johnny on the spot with a couple of figures which may present the true employment figures on this newspaper, a little pertinent advice for President Gerald Ford and maybe a suggestion or so regarding the advisability of going over the river and under the trees.

No matter what you may have read elsewhere the personnel of the Valley and the Pleasanton Times is about 65 percent female until you get to the carrier boy level.

Probably that figure will ease off after a while. It was regulated by state law until a couple of years ago and, in this old man's humble opinion, still should be somewhat restricted.

Perhaps girls should deliver afternoon newspapers. That is a fairly safe time of day.

But I, for one, do not like the idea of a teenage lassie riding through the countryside on her bicycle in the lengthening wee hours when morning publications are usually delivered.

That is, of course, a personal opinion and not in any way connected with the views of this newspaper, as are all the opinions which appear in this space.

It is born from my rearing in another era when women were objects of almost reverence and treated with as much gentility and respect as possible.

Whatever the case, carriers excepted, the full time personnel on these newspapers is 65 percent female.

Perhaps we are a little lopsided at the top, but not much and not deliberately.

Our general manager is male as is our editor, advertising supervisor, advertising manager and managing editor.

Our personnel manager and office manager is a woman as is our classified advertising supervisor.

The general manager and circulation manager are one and the same.

On the news side we had a woman news editor at the time I arrived here and she left for what she told me was a "career decision."

We had another woman in that spot some months later but almost as soon as she took the job she decided to move on to another publication. I had the impression she thought the task too confining, a pretty correct analysis of the situation.

At present our editorial staff is slightly overbalenced on the female side with six full time women and five full time men, a situation which will be corrected Monday morning when the figures will read six and six.

Believe me, the figure is an accident. I believe that throughout this organization we hire on a basis of ability rather than majority and minority membership.

Almost a year ago a young man was interviewed by me in relation to an editorial job and, in the course of conversation, mentioned he was a Chicano.

I took a long look at myself after that remark, wondering if my decision was being swayed in his favor because of his minority membership and decided that was not the case.

It was a wise decision. The young fellow is on the road to being one of the best newspapermen in the area.

One of the most talented people on our editorial staff is a woman, and I qualify that only as a matter of tact from my position as ME of this publication.

She has rare mastery of the English language, establishes excellent empathy with her sources and has a fine eye for a feature. She also drives me nuts with talk about running a way to become an archeologist or moving to Berkeley. She could become an editor almost any time she so desired, but is more interested in her chores as a mother than advancement in this questionable field.

All of which does not mean very much. I just wanted to set the record straight.

President Ford is another matter. The time has come to help him on that vexing New York City situation.

I have the solution for the President, Congress and that financially plagued city, one which I am astounded none of them has suggested.

There are three fine solutions for New York, all of which would solve that city's money problems.

The metropolis should either declare war on the United States of America, secede from the Union or incorporate not as a municipality but as the king-sized business which it is.

Such action would immediately qualify the city for either post war reconstruction with accompaning mone-tary assistance for foriegn aid, or for grants similar to those voted for Lockheed Corporation or American Airlines. Or was it Trans World?

Whatever the case, either of these three courses would immediately take care of that default threat which currently hangs like a dark and ugly cloud over the city.

We spend a few billion each year helping other war torn nations. Lots of money to push along the primative nations we euphimisticallly describe as "developing nations" and are not above helping out financially plagued companies.

The idea is to have the right status to begin with. Just being a highly troubled city in these United States is not enough.

Believe me, New York qualfies as a "developing city." Developing a lot of trouble, maybe, a lot of slums, crime and disturbances. All worthwhile projects if viewed from the right window.

All the city needs to get all the money it wants is to enter through the right door.

Sure, the city-state might slap us in the face later. But isn't that SOP for "developing nations "?"

It's worth thinking about, Mr. President.

Fourth-suit forcing is a modern invention. We hope it will never replace horse and buggy bidding.

North's two-diamond call is an example. He didn't know what to bid so he tried two diamonds to see what might happen.

This caused South to bid two and three notrump and North had to decide what to do. Finally, he passed in the hope that South could handle the diamond suit by himself. It turned out that South could.

East won the first trick with the ace of diamonds and returned the suit. South won and led the queen of spades covered by West's king and dummy's ace. At this point South decided to take an unusual safety play. He led a low heart from dummy and played the eight spot from his own hand.

This safety play cost him an overtrick, but South did not care. The game was rubber bridge and he was interested in being as sure of his contract as possible.

Who runs the best?

Mike Zampa

Bidding opened on the Heisman Trophy this week. At least two stories from the wire services speculated on Archie Griffin's chances as the first ever repeat winner, while one of the local metropolitan papers featured a run down on the top three candidates, Griffin, Ricky Bell of USC and Cal's Chuck Muncie.

Those articles touched off a torrent of prose that is sure to follow between now and the day Navy thwacks Army to signal the end of football season.

This is where the Heisman is won or lost. Not on the AstroTurf of Columbus, or 'neath the smog of Memorial Coliseum, but in the sports pages. Exposure wins Heismans, not touchdowns. A two-inch story on Sunday won't even get you in the race. A 72-point headline may be better, but it's best if they smear your picture across five or six columns.

The image makers in the press box will decide this contest. The stories that began appearing last Sunday were the signal that the game is underway.

Ohio State's Archie is the favorite, the first player to ever deserve a second Heisman. Others have been eligible, but only Archie has taken advantage of his position.

Ricky Bell is covering ground like Scottish heather for USC, but he was an unkown before the season started.

Cal's Muncie is the best of all, say the pro scouts, but they don't have a hand in writing his press reviews.

Buckeyes and Trojans are experienced Heisman winners. Unfortunately for Muncie, Cal does not have a solid reputation in this regard. There are no Golden Bears on the honor roll.

Back East (and if you want to pinpoint things, it's the Eastern press that awards Heisman) they have this picture of a Cal football player. His beard is bristling, his cleats extend down from a tattered pair of sandals, and "Thoughts From Chairman Mao" take the place of a playbook.

No doubt Muncie is a great player. But with all the drawbacks, don't bet on him.

Then again, don't assume that he is the nation's best football player.

There are a few (mostly scattered around this office) who feel that Muncie isn't even tops in the Bay Area. This small but loyal following insists that Rick Kane of San Jose State is the baddest in The Bay. To be frank, his backers are SJS grads. They have been down-trodden so long that their objectivity is suspect. Especially after the Spartans' giddy 6-1 record in the first two months of football season.

But the 6-1, 190 junior from Pleasanton is impressive. Not Heisman material yet, that can wait until next year, and besides, who ever heard of San Jose State east of Milpitas?

Yet Rich has managed to squeeze a few headlines away from Muncie this season. His team did lose a heart-breaking decision to Cal in the last minute, but that game did little to determine who's the better back. Both Muncie and Kane were near 100 yards in rushing. Rick scored for the Spartans in the fourth quarter to apparently win the game. Chuck came back to make a miracle catch and set up the actual winning touchdown Muncie fumbled several times in the first half, and so did Kane, helping Cal to a score.

Nothing to base a decision on there.

Season statistics aren't that helpful either. Not really. Muncie is fourth in the nation with 920 rushing yards in seven games. That is far behind Bell who has gained 1,233, and just a shade better than Griffin, fifth in the country at 910. The Golden Bears' golden back is averaging 131.4 yards per game.

Kane is no where to be found among the national leaders, but that's not all his fault. He has gained 647 yards in seven games, averaging 92.4 yards per contest. He does support a 5.5 average per carry. Rich has caught five passes and scored five touchdowns.

He can't match the super backs yardage-wise because he isn't playing that much. Coach Daryl Rogers has only started Rich twice since he transfered in the off season from the University of Oregon. He has been asked to share playing time with Marv Stewart, a standout player at San Jose City College. The fact that Stewart can play, and that Kane was unfamiliar with the Spartan system, influenced Rogers' decision to flip-flop the pair.

In the last two games, however, Stewart has been hurt, and Kane has run wild.He gained 197 yards against University of Pacific two weeks ago, almost rewriting the SJS record book. Last week against over-matched Cal State Fullerton, he picked up 106 yards

SJS coach praises Kane

Rick Kane's coach says the 6-1, 190 junior from Pleasanton is not an outstanding football player. Yet.

"This year I'd classify him as a good college back," says Willard Wells, offensive backfield coach at San Jose State. "Next year, maybe a great one."

Rick has taken over as the tailback for the Spartans with an injury to his running mate, Marv Stewart. But Kane too is hurting, and may miss San Jose's game with Fresno State this weekend. He was speared in the back by an opponent's helmet, and only began practicing Wednesday.

With Stewart definitely out for another week due to a damaged ankle, Kane's presence becomes all the more important. Especially with nationally ranked San Diego State coming in a week from Saturday.

"I hope his comeback pyramids to a point that he can start this week," Wells said yesterday.

Rick has become more valuable to the Spartans each week, Wells said, as he continues to learn the San Jose State system. "When he came to camp he was one of four tailbacks, and he was the newest," Wells said. And you've got to remember that he had never been an I-formation back before. He was faced with a different numbering system and different reads, things the other kids already knew. All of a sudden, they looked better than him from a technical standpoint. That's not to say they were better runners, but he made a lot of mistakes, they didn't.

"Kane has a lot of things to learn," Wells said. "He's got to learn where the blocks come from, and where his running seams are. But he has dominated the running game as far as our tailback position goes."

Averaging nearly 100 yards per game, the graduate of Amador Valley High School has led San Jose State to a 6-1 record, and a shot at the Pacific Coast Athletic Association championship.

He is still not at peak efficiency, says Wells, and may not be until next season. By transfering from the University of Oregon, and spending a quarter in junior college, Kane missed the Spartans' spring practice. It hurt his speed, Wells said, left him in less than top condition. "He's getting caught from behind where he wouldn't have been before. We're going to get him working with the track team after the season," Wells said. "We want him to sharpen his speed."

Kane was preceeded in San Jose by rumors about "attitude problems" at Oregon. That's a coaching euphimism. There's no question Rick was unhappy with the Ducks. He was used improperly in their offense. — Mike Zampa

Cowboy runners capture crown

Livermore's cross-country team cinched the East Bay Athletic League championship with an easy 16-43 victory over California High yesterday. Livermore finished with a perfect 7-0 record.

The league meet will be held next week. Livermore won the frosh-soph race 15-45 and California took the girls' race 17-20.

In other EBAL action San Ramon rolled to an easy 15-43 win over Monte Vista. Tim Galvin led the Wolves' charge with a brillant 16.56 clocking for first place. Teammate Bob Snook was second in 17.35. Brian Norris of San Ramon was third with a 17.42 clocking.

The Wolves also dominated the frosh-soph contest, taking a 25-32 victory. Jim Anklam of the Wolves won with a course record time of 11.38, beating teammate Paul Newcombe's clocking of 11.57.

Monte Vista took five of the next six places.

San Ramon and Monte Vista did not field girls and junior varsity teams.

San Ramon tied for the frosh-soph crown with a 6-1 record.

Dublin and Foothill tangled in a three-way meet (no varsity) with the Gaels taking all three divisions.

Dublin captured the frosh-soph race as Foothill had no runners. The Gaels took the girls' race easily, 13-24. Dublin won the frosh-soph race, 17-44, taking the top three places.

Sumo & Judo

The YMCA will sponsor exhibition Sumo-Judo contests Monday, 7 p.m., at Fairlands School in Pleasanton.

Professor Marie Law, a San Francisco judo instructor, will be on hand to discuss the sport.

Improved Gael gridders challenge Poke defense

Dublin High School played error-free football last week, and was rewarded with a victory over San Ramon. The exquisite sense of perfection still rolls around in coach Wayne Re's mind.

"We had no turnovers," Re gushed yesterday. "No fumbles, and no pass interceptions."

The problem tonight is that he might not have any yards.

Dublin resumes the EBAL football season with an 8 p.m. contest at Livermore. And to put it simply, Livermore is an awesome defensive football team.

The Cowboys have given up just 13 points in their last three games. They have begrudged an average of less than 40 yards rushing per game through their last four contests.

But Dublin is improving on offense, and the collision tonight should be deafening.

In other EBAL action, co-leader Amador Valley plays at Monte Vista. Tomorrow, San Ramon is at Granada.

Foothill and California clash tonight at Dublin High in non-league football. Kickoff there is 7:30

The Dublin-Livermore encounter features two teams with identical 1-1 records, yet unflagging hopes of a league title.

"We've got a loss, but we're still in there," says Re. "That's what I believe," says Berg, "and our kids believe the same thing."

The Cowboys are trying to shake the memory of their last half-minute loss to Amador a week ago. The Dons spoiled another superb Livermore defensive effort with a 38-yard touchdown pass to win 7-3.

"The kids have picked up well since then," Berg said yesterday. "They've had good practices. You'd think they would be down, but we have a great bunch."

Once again that Livermore line is anchored by names that are becoming cliche; Andrade, Howard, Tennyson, Bradley. Linebacker John Jackson has improved each week and defensive back Dennis Martinez is a good one.

They will be chasing a potentially explosive Dublin team. Gael fullback Jim Boulware needs to average 138-yards per game the rest of the way to reach 1,000 for the season. He's got his sights set, says Re.

Dublin has two interchangeable tailbacks, sophomore Jon Batchalor and junior Chuck Ganges.

Junior Sean Mays will start his fourth game at quarterback, and he has been a towering figure in Dublin's offensive resurgence. "He keeps improving with each game," Re said yesterday. "he's assumed leadership of the team, and we've been moving the ball with him. He scored on a 15 yard run last week," Re pointed out, "and he really moved around that end well. He's gotten quicker feet as the season has progressed. Sean's more consistent with his passing, and he's had some key completions for us.

"He played a little in each of our first games," Re said. And with what he had learned, we decided to go with him four games ago."

Leek keys tough win for PVSC

Pleasanton Valley Swim Club remained alive in the race for a Pleasanton Men's Volleyball championship last week, defeating Valley Community Church three times, 22-20, 21-13 and 21-7.

Lanny Peterson and Bob Leek were instrumental in the triumphs, setting up spikers Russ Watson and Don Smith.

Mac's Pak, led by 6-7 Bruce Cavestri, defeated the Pleasanton Turkeys, 21-17 and 21-14, but dropped a 21-12 decision. Brian McGuire, Stanley Paul and Reggie Cornelius played well for the Pak. John Lehman, Tony Costello and Gary Lazarotti led the Turkeys.

In women's play, Allied Brokers overcame a dismal start to take Swensen's Ice Cream, 21-15, and 21-14. Swensen's captured the opener, 21-7. Roseann Putt, Phyliss Nagel and Jean Elliott led Allied.

Cal, Falcons meet in non-league game

Foothill High School's football fortunes have taken a sudden turn for the better the last three weeks and according to assistant coach Jay Craney, the reason is better balance.

"We got a well-balanced offensive and defensive effort in our victories over Stevenson and Menlo," the ex-Chabot College star said. "Our rushing attack has really come along." California will get a chance to see the "new look" Falcons tonight when the two teams tangle in a 7.30 game at Dublin High School.

Ross Humpheries and Brad Cotton are the Falcon first string running backs and they have rolled up an impressive amount of yardage lately.

Humpheries ran for over 100 yards against Stevenson and 85 against Menlo. Cotton, who can run inside or outside with equal effectiveness rushed for 85 markers against Stevenson and 80 against Menlo.

"They have really been the key to our improvement," Craney said. "A defense can only do so much. The offense has to perform too and that is what they have been doing lately."

On the other hand, Foothill's defense has always been the team's trademark this season. Tackles Tony Trujillio and David Ledbetter have been tough all year along with linebacker Mike Colvin.

"Colvin has been real strong for us," Craney said. He's a rangy kid about 6-foot, 190 pounds. He can also play fullback for us."

The Falcon offense will be led by quarterback Kevin Henderson who has improved greatly in the past few games. He threw a 12-yard touchdown pass to Jeff Johnstone to beat Stevenson 6-0 and played a fine all-around game against Menlo.

An injury to tight end Jeff Elkins has forced the Falcon coaching staff to move tackle John Ulrech to that position. Other than that the 20-man Falcon squad is healthy.

"One thing you have to say about our squad is that every man on it is a good football player," Craney said. "A lot of schools have 35 or 40 men but only about 20 of them are really good players. Every man on our squad is a first-liner. Every player starts on either offense or defense."

Craney knows the Falcons will have to be prepared to stop an inproved California offense tonight.

"We saw them play against Los Banos," he said. "Los Banos has a really fine, aggressive football team. Even though they lost, California's players went at the Los Banos squad. They have a really fine offense."

California head coach Dick Nodlinski plans to throw his biggest asset at the Falcons tonight.

We plan to pass a lot," he said. "The teams that have played Foothill have had more success passing than running and the air game is our strong point."

The Grizzlies have passed 50% of the time they have been on offense and quarterback Tom Woodmansee is the main reason. A junior, Woodmansee has been effective with the long bomb.

Woodmansee has passed for over 100 yards in several games this season and had one of his better days in the 20-12 loss to Los Banos last week. He threw a 36-yard pass to Jeff Jones in the last quarter in a belated California attempt to catch Los Banos.

"The Los Banos game was probably our best contest all-around, Nodlinski said. "We played well against John Swett but the Los Banos game was a better all-around effort."

However, Woodmansee will be throwing against a much improved Falcon defensive backfield. The Falcons have intercepted several passes in the last few contests.

Craney praised the efforts of the Foothill defenders,"They have really come along," he said. "We have several guys who alternate in the defensive backfield. Chas Dean, Kirt Hall, Rich Henderson, Steve Tonelli and Humpheries have all done a fine job. They have been another key to our turn-around this season."

Tyler tops Straw Hat

Dan Duke threw three touchdown passes to lead C.E. Tyler to a 20-14 sudden overtime victory over Straw Hat Pizza in a Livermore Flag Football contest Saturday.

C.E. Tyler scored 14 points in the fourth quarter to force the game into overtime. Straw Hat had taken a 14-0 lead after three quarters on Mark Hartman's touchdown passes to Rich Westphal and Jim Halverson. Hartman threw a 20-yard bomb to Westphal in the second quarter for the first Straw Hat score. He threw to Halverson for the two-point conversion. He completed the Straw Hat scoring with a 15-yard toss to Halverson in the third period.

C.E. Tyler is now 5-1 in league play while Straw Hat is 3-4.

In other action American Reality stomped Royal Volvo 40-0 as they scored 16 first-quarter points. Ed Heinrich threw six touchdown passes for the winners including bombs of 50 yards to Doug Collins and Barry Maynard. Reality is now 5-1 and Royal Volvo is 3-3.

RadLab Grey smashed Allied Brokers 24-8 as Ray Werner scored one touchdown and pass for another. Tony Bright added a 25-yard run for the final RadLab touchdown.

In the final contest RadLab Green edged Sealtite Roofing 14-8. Robin Green threw two touchdown passes for the victors. Stan Peters threw a 50-yard pass to Frank Sullivan for the Sealtite score.

Standings: American Reality, 5-1; Cheese Factory, 5-1; C.E. Tyler, 5-1; RadLab Green, 4-2; Royal Volvo, 3-3; Straw Hat, 3-4; RadLab Grey, 2-5; Sealtite Roofing, 1-5; Allied Brokers, 0-6.

in just one half.

Had Rich been in the lineup since opening day, carrying the ball as often as, say, Bell of USC, he might have surpassed the 1,000 yard barrier by now. Not that he's complaining. Kane insists he enjoys sharing with Stewart. He also says his average of 17 carries per game is quite enough.

It's just that his ability shouldn't be overlooked just because it doesn't take a calculator to plot his totals.

Kane may not belong in the same class as the Heisman troika of Griffin-Bell-Muncie. But the pros don't seem to feel that way.

The Oakland Raiders have been following his exploits since high school. Of course it helped that Rich played in the back yard of Raider coach John Madden. But then everyone knows by now that Madden once described Kane as the most dynamic force he'd ever seen on a football field.

Is Kane as good as Muncie? You'd have to call their one head-on-head this season a draw. It could be that the answer will come a few a few seasons hence in the National Football League.

Ferguson, Glads take on CCSF

The problem with statistics in California junior college football is that they run a week behind. So despite the fact this weeks totals indicate Chabot College's Tom Ferguson atop the pass receiving charts, he has already relinquished his lead.

The Gladiator sophomore has hauled in 38 for the year, easily tops in the Golden Gate Conference. But after catching just two balls in a route of Laney last week, he has been surpassed by Daniel Garcia of L.A. Pierce, who now has 41 receptions.

Of course Ferguson can get back into the race tomorrow night, when Chabot entertains City College of San Francisco on Homecoming Night in Hayward.

Much as the Gladiators would like to help Ferguson become their first receiving king since Jimmy Carter, they'll concentrate more on the conference standings. Chabot is 4-1 in the league and tied for first place with West Valley. DeAnza is one-half game behind at 3-1.

The comforting note is that Chabot has already defeated both of those teams. So it can finish the season tied, and still earn a post-season bowl berth on the basis of those victories. All that's required are victories in the final three games of the season.

San Francisco shouldn't pose a terrific problem, limping along with a 1-3 conference record, and 2-4 overall. The Rams are next-to-last in the GGC in total offense, and fifth in defense.

They have the league's sixth best quarterback, sophomore Carlos Vasquez, who has completed 41 of 85 passes for 477 yards and two touchdowns.

Their leading rusher is Angelo Dillon, with 278 yards gained in six games.

If CCSF has any strength, it is in the defensive line. It is anchored by 6-1, 235 sophomore Willie Nevels, the GGC's defensive lineman of the year last season. He and Nofo Tipoti, 6-2, 250, will pose problems for Chabot quarterback Chuck Stevenson, and runners Curt Bledsoe (377 yards) and Robert Bruce (269).

Stevenson is now third in conference passing statistics with 47-of-98 for 656 yards and three scores.

CITY OF PLEASANTON
NOTICE OF INTENT TO FILE
A NEGATIVE DECLARATION
PROJECT DESIGNATIONS;
RZ-75-13, 14 and 15
October 31, 1975

In accordance with the provisions set forth in Resolution No. 75-133 and as amended in Resolution No. 75-22 (Environmental Impact Guidelines and Procedures), rezoning applications RZ-75-13, RZ-75-14 and RZ-75-15, have been determined to require a negative declaration.

The projects entail amending certain sections of Chapter 2, Title II of the Ordinance Code of the City of Pleasanton. RZ-75-13 would amend Section 2-10.17 et seq., revising the required conditions and administrative procedures for home occupations. RZ-75-14 and RZ-75-15 would amend Section 2-7.08(a) to allow office uses as permitted or conditionally permitted uses in the C-N (Commercial Neighborhood) District, office building construction as a conditional use in the C-N District, and swimming pool sales and display as a conditional use in the C-F (Freeway Commercial) District.

These amendments to the zoning ordinance would not have any significant adverse environmental impacts. The home occupation revisions are meant to insure the residential flavor of residential areas by continuing to exclude inappropriate commercial uses. The C-N District was designed to provide appropriately located areas for offices as well as retail stores; this amendment would clarify ambiguities in the code and allows office uses which were heretofore disallowed. Allowing swimming pool display and sales offices in the C-F District is a logical extension of the purposes of that district to allow uses requiring large sites not requiring close proximity to other commercial uses. None of these amendments would allow uses creating traffic or noise inappropriate for its zone nor would it introduce incompatible uses to the established zone. It is the finding of the Director of Housing and Community Development that these rezonings would not create, to a significant degree, any of the effects enumerated in the Environmental Impact Guidelines and Procedures which indicate that the environment may be harmed.

For more information on this case, contact the Department of Housing and Community Development, 200 Bernal Avenue, Pleasanton, California, 94566, telephone 846-3202.

Unless any written appeals of this case are received by this department within ten (10) days of the above date or publication of this notice in the Pleasanton Times, whichever is later, this decision will become effective.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

The Planning Commission of the City of Pleasanton has set November 12, 1975, at the hour of 8:00 P.M. Wednesday evening, a regular Planning Commission meeting in the Pleasanton Justice Court, 30 West Angela Street, Pleasanton, California, as the time and place to consider the following matter:

NOTICE OF INTENT TO FILE
A NEGATIVE DECLARATION
PROJECT DESIGNATION: Z-75-159
October 31, 1975

In accordance with the provisions set forth in Resolution No. 74-133 and as amended in Resolution No. 75-22 (Environmental Impact Guidelines and Procedures), zoning application Z-75-159, an application to construct six duplexes, has been determined to require a negative declaration.

The project consists of the construction of six duplexes (twelve dwelling units) located at 6101 to 6267 Hansen Drive.

The construction of the six duplexes would have normal temporary construction impacts but since existing residences are located on only one end of the site, these would not be unduly bothersome. Permanent impacts are also slight. Development would take place within a built-up tract and the street design is designed to accommodate this planned use of these six lots. It is the finding of the Director of Housing and Community Development that this rezoning would not create, to a significant degree, any of the effects enumerated in the Environmental Impact Guidelines and Procedures which indicate that the environment may be harmed.

For more information on this case, contact the Department of Housing and Community Development, 200 Bernal Avenue, Pleasanton, California 94566, telephone 846-3202.

Unless any written appeals of this case are received by this department within ten (10) days of the above date or publication of this notice in the Pleasanton Times, whichever is later, this decision will become effective.

Young at heart

Proving again that we're all kids at heart — especially when lost in the wonders of a toy store — Dublin Toy World manager Jack Selley (left) opened the wonders of his new store to Dublin Maid Brenda Sylva, Chamber of Commerce President George Fallon, three-year-old Kimberly Sloane, and a myriad of kids of all ages. Jack expects a booming business at his 7871 Amador Valley Blvd. site in the Shannon Shopping Center. With the holidays just ahead, and heaven in his aisles, Dublin's newest business is a sure fire success (Times photo by Ron Rodriguez)

Four hopefuls, 20 voters at VCSD candidates night

Less than 20 citizens took advantage of the opportunity Tuesday night to hear four candidates for three seats on the Valley Community Services District (VCSD) Board of Directors.

The candidates night, held at Shannon Park Community Center, was co-sponsored by the Dublin Women's Club and League of Women Voters.

Incumbents Richard Fahey, Ann Jolley, Chuck Ladner and challenger Kathie Waterson were present.

Challenger Bruce Dillashaw did not attend due to prior committments.

Each incumbent lauded board accomplishments, especially in the area of parks and recreation.

Dick Fahey declared the board had done much to "improve the quality of life in the District." He noted the nagging problem of water quality in Dublin could be ameliorated only through working with the wholesalers, Zone 7 of the Alameda County Flood control and Water Conservation District.

Ann Jolley reiterated Fahey's statements, saying the only way to improve the water is the option already taken by the board. She Jolley promised to begin action to establish a drop-in center for senior citizens. She said elder residents badly needed "a place of their own."

Chuck Ladner, who was appointed last year to fill a vacated seat, said his biggest asset was the time he had to devote to VCSD matters. He vowed to "watch closely every dollar spent to see we get the best buy for you and me."

Kathie Waterson, a 30-year old Dublin homemaker, spoke against the incorporation of Dublin and Pleasanton. She said opposed the incorporation of Dublin as a separate city at this time, noting it did not have the tax base to sustain itself.

In answer to the question should sewage plant expansion costs be borne by new users or all users, Fahey said pure expansion to accomodate new growth should be paid for through connection fees. He said costs for improvements to the syytem should be shared by all users.

Kathie Waterson declared area residents should be guaranteed accessibility to BART, saying there is a desperate need for feeder busses "at the least."

Ladner indicated the VSCD board has been meeting with other towns in a similar position, BART board members, and Supervisor Murphy to see that BART feeder busses are not discontinued. Incumbents Fahey, Jolley, and Ladner assured citizens the increased charge to water wholesalers recently adopted by Zone 7 would not be passed on to consumers.

They admitted a VCSD representative was not present at the Zone 7 meeting when prices were increased.
